

MAKE A PLAN TO TAKE YOUR SHOT

Vaccinating against COVID-19 is critical to stopping the spread of the virus, preventing hospitalizations and deaths, and getting life back to normal. Simply put, vaccinating against COVID-19 is the best way to protect yourself and your loved ones, and to end the pandemic for us all. While you're waiting for your turn, be sure you are ready by making a plan to take your shot – and don't forget to keep wearing your mask, washing your hands, and socially distancing from others.

Get answers to your questions now

Turn to reliable sources to get the latest information about COVID-19 vaccines – including how we know they're safe, effective, and able to protect us.

Know when it's your turn and sign up

Check with your state health department to know when you can be vaccinated and how to sign up. This state-by-state map links to information about your state. Be sure to pre-register with your local health department, local health system, pharmacy or doctor's office as soon as you can.

Keep your vaccination appointments

Plan ahead to make sure you know where to go and how you will get there; make arrangements in advance to cover work, childcare and other responsibilities so you can keep your appointments. And when you do receive your vaccine, keep your vaccination card.

Protect yourself and avoid spreading COVID-19

Wear your mask, wash your hands and socially distance from others – even after you are vaccinated. Following public health and safety recommendations will help to protect others who are not yet vaccinated.

Thank you for doing your part to keep yourself, your loved ones and our communities safe!

Connect with the Partnership to Fight Infectious Disease at fightinfectiousdisease.org and follow @ThePFID on Twitter and on LinkedIn.